

National Support Centers and the National Center on Poverty Law Collaborate to Disseminate Information to Advocates

For many years the national support centers have been playing an important role in identifying and analyzing poverty law developments in CLEARINGHOUSE REVIEW. They also have been adding substantially to the National Center on Poverty Law library collection. The National Center on Poverty Law (formerly known as National Clearinghouse for Legal Services) is fortunate to have the assurance of continued contributions from most of the national support centers that the Legal Services Corporation formerly funded and from some other specialized support centers. The National Center on Poverty Law lists them here and is grateful for their significant work to enhance communication about poverty law issues among advocates.
