ADVISORY COMMITTEE

NLADA was founded to scale access to counsel systems. For more than 100 years, NLADA has collaborated with distinguished legal executives from a wide variety of industries to help low-income people in need of legal services by strengthening pro bono programs, formulating national strategies in support of funding for legal representation and supporting resource development at NLADA.

Twenty-five years ago, those unofficial partnerships were formalized in NLADA's Corporate Advisory Committee (CAC) under the leadership of Jack Martin, then Vice President and General Counsel of Ford Motor Company. It institutionalizes corporate America's dedication to the principle of equal justice under the law and engages the corporate sector to ensure the availability of quality representation to those who cannot otherwise afford counsel through pro bono activities and other means of support.

Your CAC membership not only supports NLADA's vital mission and important work, it provides opportunities for you and your company to demonstrate your high level of corporate and community responsibility. The CAC also has its own signature projects that include actively supporting an increase of funding for the Legal Services Corporation; strengthening the Public Service Loan Forgiveness Program; expanding pro bono work and promoting an incredible, new technology initiative – DONAFY – that helps to link legal clients with needed holistic services through a smart phone app. With the assistance of CAC members, DONAFY will scale nationwide and have an immense impact on the delivery of legal services.
